

TRADE MARBLE'S MARK SAFETY AXES

Richard Harding Davis, the famous author and war correspondent, in an article in Scribner's Magazine, entitled "Kits and Outfits", said: "The best axe I have seen is the Marble Safety Axe. You can carry it in your hip pocket and you can cut down a tree with it". (An eight inch Norway pine can be cut down in five minutes).

Marble's Safety Axes are practical, perfectly balanced, tough and keen—capable of withstanding the severest usage and good for a hundred different purposes. A perfect axe for setting a tent, blazing a trail, or cutting gambrel sticks or a pole for carrying a big buck. A stream can be bridged—a raft easily constructed. Caught far from camp at nightfall, the hunter can quickly provide himself with firewood and a bed of boughs.

Marble's No. 2 Safety Axe, shown in illustration at right, is 11 inches long and weighs but 20 ounces. Has unbreakable steel handle with hard rubber side plates. The nickel plated guard is lead lined and folds back into handle when axe is in use. Blade is $2\frac{3}{8} \times 4$ inches—made of tool steel, carefully tempered and sharpened. Price

$2.75

Marble's No. 6 Safety Axe is 12 inches long and weighs 22 ounces. Handle is of selected hickory. Lead-lined folding guard, same as No. 2 Axe. Solid steel blade, $2\frac{3}{8} \times 4\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Price \$1.65

Marble's No. 10 Camp Axe—Blade forged from solid tool steel. Tempered head designed for driving stakes, spikes, etc., will not batter under most severe service. The accurately machined eye is fitted perfectly by the handle and is constructed to give the greatest amount of bearing surface on the handle, thus eliminating all liability of the head working loose. Nail puller has tempered jaw. These are exclusive features in Marble's tool-steel axes.

Handles are of thoroughly seasoned selected hickory and offer a very secure grip. Axe can be easily inserted or removed from a sheath. Price, with sheath, $2.50. Without sheath
